Wardy's Newhaven College Christmas Tree was adorned with an incredible collection of gifts donated by the Newhaven College and Phillip Island community.

This week the gifts were collected to be distributed via St Vincent de Paul to children in need this Christmas.

John Ward was with the St Vincent de Paul volunteers, Linda Sparkes, Ann Owens and Narelle Mulcahy to collect the gifts.

They were incredulous at the generous donations. Linda said that 160 local families will be the happy recipients of the gifts do-

Wardy's Christmas Tree appeal has been running for 24 years and John is still "blown away" by the support from the community.

"My sincere thank you to all those who have supported the cause," John said.

"There are many young people who will wake up to a happier Christmas Day than would have been the case without you thank you."

Newhaven College expressed its deepest thanks to everyone who donated, saying the College community was overawed by the generosity.

Year 1 students Reegan Welsh, Lily Solibakke, Emily Hardy, Casey Felstead and Alexandra Zoanetti are very impressed with all the generous gifts left under Wardy's Newhaven College Christmas Tree.

Ballot issues

Election day in Bass was marred by a number of polling centres running out of ballot papers.

Of the Phillip Island and San Remo polling centres, only Newhaven was impacted, however it's been reported at least seven polling centres across the electorate ran out of ballot papers.

A spokesperson for the Victorian Electoral Commission (VEC) said they were aware of "a limited number of voting centres that ran low or out of printed district ballot papers in Bass District on election day"

However they said replacement ballot papers were provided to each centre, and in the interim voters were given the option to vote at a neighbouring centre, wait for replacement ballots or return later in the day.

Some were provided with ballot papers with candidates names handwritten by election officials, which the spokesperson said was "an acceptable approach in this situation and is permitted by legislation".

Carols by the Bay in Cowes is now on December 20, after high winds and rain forced this week's event to be postponed. The schedule will remain as advertised, including children's entertainment, a visit from Santa, carols and fireworks.

Covid cases continue to grow

There were 166 new cases recorded in Bass Coast last week, with close to half of the current active cases recorded in Cowes and San Remo.

Victoria is currently experiencing a Covid wave, and last week, the state government said an average of 12 Covid-related deaths were reported each day.

There has been a 61.8 per cent increase in the number of daily Covid-related deaths in the past month when compared to the previous month.

The government said case numbers have shown signs of stabilising, "however there remains significant uncertainty around the duration and severity of this wave due to the role of multiple new variants circulating in Victoria".

The Chief Health Office advised there are simple things people can do now to reduce transmission and protect the community, particularly as we approach the holiday season.

If you plan on attending a social event this December, consider taking a rapid antigen test before you go and especially if you have any symptoms.

If you are positive for Covid-19, you should isolate for at least five days.

Wearing a high quality and well fitted mask can protect you from the virus.

If you are meeting friends or family indoors, open windows and doors, so air can circulate, to reduce the spread of the virus.

The uptake of vaccines in Victoria increased for the first time in several months, with the government saying around 54,000 Victorians had their fourth dose vaccination in the past four weeks, which is a 60 per cent increase on the previous four-week period.

Adults aged 30 and over are eligible for a fourth dose of the vaccine, as well as people who are immune-compromised or with certain medical conditions.

The Mobile Vaccination Bus will be in Wonthaggi on December 14 and 20 from 10am to 2pm, providing free Covid vaccinations and boosters for anyone aged five and over.

Vaccines are free and available at pharmacies and GPs.

You can find the nearest available vaccine clinic at covid-vaccine.healthdirect.gov.au/booking/ Find a pharmacy near you providing the vaccine www.findapharmacy.com.au

Covid tests (PCR and RAT) are available from Monash Pathology at the Cowes Health Hub, 50 Church Street between 12.30pm and 3.30pm on Monday, Wednesday and Friday or in Wonthaggi Hospital, 235 Graham Street, Monday to Saturday from 9am to 1pm. PCR tests are also available at the Wonthaggi Respiratory Clinic by appointment.

Please bring photo ID with date of birth and/ or a Medicare card. You can pre-register for PCR testing and RAT distribution at testtracker.covid19.dhhs.vic.gov.au/citizen-prefill Rapid Antigen Tests can also be purchased at pharmacies and supermarkets.

Planning committee finally kicks off tionists and farmers are among more than 700 submitters taking part in a state government committee hearing on new planning controls for Bass Coast, which began this week.

In 2019 the government declared Bass Coast a Distinctive Area and Landscapes (DAL) to guide future land use, earlier this year releasing the final document in the process for community consultation, the draft Statement of Planning Policy (SPP).

About 750 written submissions to the SPP have been referred to a Standing Advisory Committee, which met on December 13 for an initial directions hearing, with the formal hearing set to start on March 6 and run for up to six weeks.

The committee, which will provide an independent report to the Planning Minister, on Tuesday held a video conference to answer submitter questions about the committee process, and discussed site inspections around Bass Coast.

Once the public hearing begins in March, committee members Kathy Mitchell, Peter Edwards (who were both on the Surf Coast DAL committee), as well as Jess Tulloch, will hear submitters by video conference, or in

The hearing is informal, not like a court, with its main purpose for submitters to speak to their submissions.

Submitters

The announcement of the committee came as a surprise to Bass Coast Shire, who last month issued a stern media release saying a committee would force them to delay projects and would cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars".

Mayor Cr Michael Whelan said the delays already associated with the DAL had impacted their planning program, particularly developer-led rezoning.

The shire's DAL submission sought planning panel consideration on issues including Newhaven West and

Under the proposed new planning rules, there will be a series of beefedup controls to protect six areas that have been declared state or regionally significant, including the coast and hinterland between Cape Woolamai and Ventnor, as well as the Rhyll Inlet, and areas north of Cowes-Rhyll Road to Newhaven. Photo: Phillip Island Helicopters.

the Grantville industrial area, however Cr Whelan said the shire's planning scheme already delineated town boundaries.

In May the Advertiser reported on Phillip Island submitters, including developers hoping to build a housing subdivision in Newhaven west who lodged a submission critical that proposed new planning rules excluded their land.

An alliance of 14 local community groups – Island Voice, and transport and environment organisations called on the state government to amend planning policies to protect farmers and tighten Cowes' town boundaries.

Victoria's peak farm body, the Victorian Farmers Federation (VFF), wrote a submission critical of the draft SPP, saying the draft was tourism-centric and undermined agricultural businesses.

Another submission by the Save Western Port Woodlands (SWPW) group called for sand mining to be phased out in the Grantville woodlands, with no permits issued for expansion of quarries.

A submission by the Phillip Island Conservation Society supported the draft SPP's planning controls as "an opportunity to arrest" the loss of vegetation and habitat across the shire.

What is the DAL?

• Planning controls: There will be a series of beefed-up landscape planning controls to protect six Bass Coast areas that have been declared state or regionally significant, including the coast and hinterland between Cape Woolamai and Ventnor, as well as the Rhyll Inlet, and areas north of Cowes-Rhyll Road to Newhaven. For example, at San Remo, the draft SPP says no buildings should protrude above natural topography, and significant views should be protected from the George Bass Coastal Walk.

• Town boundaries: It is proposed to exclude from the town boundary the farming zone land at the north-east corner of Coghlan Road and Cowes-Rhyll Road (the Cowes Golf Club and Lechte land). Equally, Saltwater Creek to the west is an important green break between Ventnor and Cowes and should be protected. San Remo's ultimate township boundary will be Punchbowl Road. The Phillip Island Airport site is located in a landscape of state significance and will remain outside the Cape Woolamai settlement boundary. It is proposed to exclude the farming zone land to the west of the established Newhaven residential area, near Churchill Island and the chocolate factory.

Revised Anderson boat ramp designs released

The state government has quietly released updated designs for the upgrade of the Anderson Road boat ramp and jetty.

The new designs, released last week, now raise the height of the ramp to just above the existing beach height, while the ramp width will be retained.

The upgrades will also raise the height of the lower landings on the adjacent jetty and extend it out by 30 metres "to provide more on water berthing across a greater tidal range".

There will be no further public consultation on the revisions, with construction set to proceed between May to August 2023, and the ramp closed during construction.

The current Cowes boat ramp includes a single-lane ramp, which is impacted by sand accumulation due to the shallow grade of the beach, making launching and retrieving vessels difficult – and requiring a dozer to constantly clear sand – while the adjacent jetty is too low and largely unusable at higher tides.

Last year, unbudgeted plans to upgrade the ramp were unveiled at a community meeting, where many local boaties criticised aspects of the plans, including a proposal for timber groynes, the realignment of the turning circle, raising the height of the ramp well above the beach, and dredging at the toe of the ramp.

Earlier this year detailed designs were commissioned by the government, with the government most recently announcing $2 million funding for the start of staged construction, and an extra $800,000 to extend the jetty.

Only those boaties who subscribe or log on to Better Boating Victoria's Facebook page have been alerted to the revisions, with one fisherman last week stating "a lot of people have not been informed of the new plans". Media were also not informed.

Changes

According to Better Boating Victoria (BBV) the revised design "will reduce the impact of sand and require less maintenance to remain open and operational for boaters".

"The height of the ramp has been reduced as a large solid structure would trap sand on one side but also starve the beach of sand on the other side, resulting in significant erosion elsewhere along the beach," BBV said.

"The new ramp will still require periodic maintenance to manage sand build up. However, as the new ramp will sit higher it will require significantly less maintenance. The reduced sand build up means that boaters will no longer be reliant on contractors to regularly dig the ramp out for access."

In 2021 Better Boating Victoria unveiled upgrade plans for the Anderson St boat ramp in Cowes, with detailed designs set to be released at the end of summer, ahead of planned construction not before Easter BBV said revisions were needed to the original plan.

"The previous design relied on timber groynes and dredging to manage the accumulation of sand on the ramp. Advice from coastal engineers is that the volume of sand moving along the beach would make regular dredging unfeasible and ultimately lead to ongoing issues with sand accumulation again."

Not perfect

However, BBV conceded even with the revisions the boat ramp will never be an all-tide facility, with Rhyll's new ramp best used in all tides, or Newhaven.

"The seabed directly out from the ramp is very flat for about 100 metres, and all-tide access will be very difficult to achieve.

cess will be very difficult to achieve.
"Advice from the design engineers suggest that the ramp will be best suited to the top 60 per cent of the tidal ranges. Some smaller boats and PWCs will still be able to use it at lower tides.

"Given the shallow grade of the ramp it is best suited to smaller, lighter boats. Larger boats can launch here during higher tides, but they are better suited to other ramps."

Several boaties at last year's community meeting suggested a marina could solve the ramp's problems, but BBV said this was not feasible "due to the shallow seabed, coastal processes and significant sand movement along that section of coastline".

Those who have seen the updated plans had mixed reactions.

Quentin Daniel described the revision as a "shemozzle".

"They have decided that instead of improving the ramp for more boats sizes they just send bigger boats to Rhyll and Newhaven," Quentin said. Kevin Reid said he was disappointed there would be no further public consultation.

Tas Roussos said only because he subscribed to BBV's Facebook page did he see the new designs, even though he submitted his ideas at last year's community meeting.

"I'm happier and the revised plans sound like they might improve the situation – it's wider but the gradient needs to be steeper because currently it's not deep enough," Tas said.

He said if the adjacent jetty was being extended by 30 metres it would become a fishing hotspot "and everyone will be fishing there and not off the Cowes jetty".

The upgrades won't impact other users who walk along Anderson beach.

And the ultimate local seafood feast?

Crayfish, caught a few kilometres off shore, and sold fresh direct to customers at Newhaven's Bass Strait Direct.

Matthew Harry is one of two cray fishermen operating out of San Remo and one of just 12 working in the Victorian cray industry.

"I head out about 3am when the weather is favourable and have it to the customer within now use the easier and quicker method of hours of being caught," said Matthew, who fishes alone.

"It's a boutique industry."

Curt Trewavis, from Bass Strait Direct, was a commercial long line gummy fisherman out of San Remo before starting the retail outlet in Newhaven in 2015.

While the shop through the year sells about

Summer on Phillip Island is synonymous 60 fish species, varying according to the sea- having recently sold his previous boat the son, Curt said crays – also known as southern rock lobster - were ideal not just for Christmas, but also New Year's Eve and summer dining.

While orders for crays have now closed, he said walk-ins would still be able to secure a cray, sold live or cooked, cut and cleaned.

'Crays move quickly, though, every day at this time of year we sell out," Curt said.

"We cook crays the traditional way. A lot steaming in an oven, but we use a big boiler and cook in a salted brine mix."

Sustainable

Matthew, who has been a southern rock lobster fisherman for nearly 20 years in San Remo and has had a lifetime on the ocean. fishes from his 37-foot cray boat, the Casino,

Lady Di.

He has 40 pots, which he baits and drops to a depth of about 45 metres, attached to a rope and buoys on the surface

The catch radius runs from Cape Shank to Wilsons Promontory, largely inshore.

An average daily catch is 21 cray, average size 1.1kg - 1.2kg.

"But the biggest one I've caught was 6.2kg. There's no upper size limit to crays and we catch them from when they're about five years of age."

Matthew said cray fishing is very sustainable, with the season closed in October and starting November 15 each year.

'It has very little impact on the coast. We shorten the ropes and keep gear spread out to avoid whales during May to September.

He tags and releases crays to monitor the health of the population for the Victorian Fishing Authority, while also taking part in an annual four-day survey measuring and gathering data on the species.

Matthew has a popular Instagram page, the Kilcunda Cray Fisherman, and said while he loves his job there were few younger anglers willing to take on the lifestyle or the high costs of cray fishing.

"It's harder to get younger people into the industry. We are not being replaced.

'But I've always said this isn't a job, it's a lifestyle. Once you get salt in your veins it's almost impossible to give it up."

The unusually wet spring has made the fragile cliffs at the Colonnades even more prone to collapse than ever.

Look out for a landslide

Crumbling cliffs at local beaches, particular Surf Beach and the Colonnades are nothing new.

But the unusually wet spring weather has made the fragile cliffs even more prone to collapse than ever

And beachgoers are being warned to stay away from the crumbling

Last year, a series of rock falls at The Colonnades and Surf Beach prompted the Phillip Island Nature Parks to engage a geotechnical engineer to assess the stability of coastal cliffs on the beaches it manages.

The report was completed earlier this year but is not publicly available, with the Nature Parks describing it as an internal and highly technical document.

In July, the Nature Parks told the Advertiser the report recommended hazardous areas of the beaches be cordoned off to preserve the fragile coastline and prevent accidents.

It also said it would investigate introducing more warning signs at regular intervals along the coastline.

Last month, local beach walkers noticed sections at the top of the Colonnades cliffs had collapsed. Another section collapsed last week.

The Nature Parks said the heavy rainfall was contributing to the fragility of the cliffs. Phillip Island Nature Parks Ranger in Charge Ben Thomas warned that cliffs along the island's southern coastline were made from soft rock, prone to collapse.

"While there is no immediate risk to visitor safety or infrastructure, the cliff edges are made of soft rock which can give way without warning and pose a danger to beachgoers, Mr Thomas said

"Signage has been installed at the areas of most concern so visitors are alerted to the risks, but we urge the community to remain vigilant and take adequate steps to avoid the likelihood of an accident."

He said hard barriers are not an option at many of these sites, due to the soft rock, sandy beaches and high tides.

Mr Thomas said it was important that people using the beaches avoided being in close proximity to cliff edges, did not stand or sit under coastal cliffs and refrained from being stationary within 10 metres from the base of coastal cliffs on the Is-

The Nature Parks said the Colonnades and Surf Beach areas were of most concern.

A spokesperson said additional signage will be installed at Surf

Beach to cover more entry points. "There won't be any new signage installed at the Colonnades as there are not any suitable locations.

"Signs on the beach or cliffs can become a hazard in themselves so we've had to carefully choose where to put the signs.

In July the Nature Parks said the geotechnical report recommended assessing the lookouts and viewing areas along the coastline, with some possibly needing to be relocated.

However when asked this month, it was unable to provide any details of the assessment, but said information from the report had informed its asset management system, "to assist in deciding which lookouts are prioritised for renewal or replacement, as part of medium to long term miti-

The spokesperson said Nature Parks was about to launch a "comprehensive community awareness campaign about unstable cliffs".

The campaign would include additional signage at the Newhaven visitor's centre, website and social media messaging and direct emails to visitors.

In the past twelve months there have been significant rockfalls at The Colonnades in January, March and April 2022. Recently falls have been recorded in November and De-

At Surf Beach there was a rock fall at Crazy Birds Beach on December 31, 2021.

In September this year, a resident posted a photo on the Phillip island Community Notice board of a recent rock fall at Surf Beach.

"I still see people walking along cliff faces and inside caves regularly. Especially at high tide when there's no option but to walk close to the cliff face," they said.

Another person commented that the rock fall was at "caves" where people put their towels or sit in to avoid the sun.

"My grandma used to warn people hiding in them of this happening, but no one ever moved their towels when she warned them. Now look."

Last summer, there were VMS boards installed at car parks near the beaches, alerting beach goers to the risk of a rock fall.

On the west coast, the Great Ocean Road Coast and Parks Authority has told beachgoers not to sunbake under cliffs there first patient to be treated in the new ED, Chris Larsen of Phillip Island. She received a certificate to mark the occasion.

They said heavy rain had increased the risk of cliff collapses, with beaches at Torquay, Jan Juc, Anglesea and Aireys Inlet considered high risk.

History made as doors to new Wonthaggi Hospital open

A Phillip Islander was the first patient to be treated in the new Emergency Department (ED) when Bass Coast Health opened the new ED in the $115 Wonthaggi Hospital.

The first patient was Islander Chris Larsen, who sustained a neck injury after diving into a sandbank.

"I was seen really quickly and everyone was just so happy. All the staff are over the moon and the new Emergency Department just makes for a better experience.

"It's just so more airy, open and fresh. It's so spacious and makes you feel more relaxed," she said.

Bass Coast Health (BCH) CEO Jan Child celebrated the opening of Main Reception at 7am, with the Emergency Department, Short Stay Unit and Radiology opening at

"Our community and staff have been looking forward to this day since we first began planning for the expanded hospital more than four years ago," she said.
"The new hospital is an amazing facility that is ground-breaking for Wonthaggi and will enable us to grow our services and treat more patients closer to their homes.

"For the first time in history, the hospital has a purpose-built Emergency Department that will serve the community, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, for decades to "The new Main Reception is so spacious and light and embodies everything that this new hospital is built for: delivering healthcare of the future."

Patients were relocated from the previous emergency department in Armitage House in the lead-up to the official opening at 10am.

The new Emergency Department has general cubicles, resuscitation cubicles, a behavioural assessment room, a plaster room and a procedure room.

Larger patients are catered for by a designated bariatric cubicle and there are high acuity cubicles for particularly ill patients.

Children will be treated in the designated paediatric cubicle and there are isolation cubicles for those with infectious conditions.

Ms Child said the preparation was "just so well planned and executed" and led to a smooth transition of services across to the new hospital.

"What a magnificent facility our staff have delivered to our community," she said.

People wishing to access the ED in the new hospital can do so by entering the hospital grounds from Graham Street and parking in the main carpark.

They can then follow the signs to the ED – look for the big red 'Emergency' sign - and enter via the dedicated entry and present to ED reception.

The Short Stay Unit is part of the ED and is for patients requiring an overnight stay for observation or to receive treatment such as physiotherapy the next day.

Main Reception for the new and existing hospital now operates from the new hospital. Patients and visitors can park in the front park and enter the door marked 'Main Entry'.

"The new Main Entry is now how people enter the hospital for Radiology, Pathology, the Acute Ward, Surgery and Maternity," Ms Child said.

"Our staff and volunteers are on hand to help you to find your way and there are many signs to guide you. Patients and visitors will be impressed by the many photos of iconic local scenes such as the trestle bridge at Kilcunda that will help them to find their way."

Allied Health services, including Dental, will still be accessible via the Ambulatory Care entry in the current hospital.

The current main entrance is now closed to the public and will be renovated in January to provide for another corridor linking the new and current hospitals.

The Acute Ward will move into the expanded hospital early January and Theatre will relocate late January/early February.

From December 14, Armitage
House, where the Emergency Department was previously located, will house the sub-acute services of rehabilitation and palliative care.

Those services are now located in Sleeman Ward within the hospital, which will be used by BCH's Learning and Development team from December 16.

Residents have questioned Bass Coast Shire's road sealing program, currently underway, saying some roads in desperate need of a fix are being ignored, while others in good condition are being renewed.

The shire is carrying out a $730,000, three-week road spray sealing, including asphalt block patching, kerb, channel and pit renewal.

A Silverleaves resident said Dolphin Avenue was in perfect condition yet received a spray seal this month. "There are a few of us locals that find this to be a disgrace as it was such a waste of rate payer's money," the resident said. "There was nothing wrong with the road and now it is covered in

Everyone encouraged to share our shores this summer

School children are being encouraged to lia and it is incumbent on everyone who enjoys showcase their artistic flair as part of a creative community collaboration to foster respect for the Phillip Island's beaches and wildlife this summer

Phillip Island Nature Parks, supported by the Bass Coast Dog Owners Association, have launched the Sharing Our Shores campaign, encouraging all residents and visitors to be mindful of protecting local wildlife, amid the peak holiday season.

As part of the campaign, there will be an art competition where students can create a poster that communicates the importance of harmonious relationships between residents, visitors and the island to support local conservation efforts.

Phillip Island Nature Parks Jessica McKelson, Conservation Manager said it was a joint community responsibility by all beachgoers to help safeguard local wildlife.

"Phillip Island is home to some of the most incredible and endangered wildlife in Austrathe island to ensure these birds and animals are kept safe," Jess said.

"The highly threatened hooded plover shorebirds nest along the high tide line and in sand dunes during spring and summer, with their eggs and chicks easily stepped on because they are difficult to see.

"In addition, the migratory short-tailed shearwaters breed in sand dune burrows from September to May and fly north in winter.

"Keeping to the designated paths and having your dog on a lead, away from signed nesting areas, helps to ensure the survival of these

Phillip Island Nature Parks, supported by the Bass Coast Dog Owners Association, have launched the Sharing Our Shores campaign, encouraging all residents and visitors to be mindful of protecting local wildlife.

Last week this tent was pitched in plain sight, on the grass verge overlooking Osbourne Avenue beach, with some suggesting it was a sign of homelessness but others agreeing it was the annual problem of illegal camping by visitors unwilling to pay for accommodation.

It's summer, so illegal camping on the rise

Opportunistic visitors are "when advised by the com- their rentals into AirBnb all once again flouting Phillip Island's illegal camping rules by brazenly pitching tents on beaches and public areas.

Last week dozens of people took to social media to comment on one traveller who pitched his tent in plain sight, on the grass verge overlooking Osbourne Avenue beach.

In recent weeks tradies with tool trailers in tow - have been found rolling out swags and tents in Oswin Roberts Reserve, after motorhomes were also found to be setting up camp in the bushland.

And earlier this year a resident at Kitty Miller Bay was forced to call the police after an altercation with the owner of a mobile home parked overnight in the car park, later voicing her frustration at the growing number of free campers on Phillip Island.

Bass Coast Shire CEO Ali Wastie last week reiterated there were no foreshore areas where camping was allowed.

She said shire officers were currently carrying out an education campaign "which will be followed by enforce-

Motives?

In the past two years, the Advertiser has been contacted repeatedly by local residents alarmed by the rise in free camping.

Last year residents and dog walkers were aghast to see a 4WD and tent right on the beach at Cape Woolamai, while photos from a Surf Beach resident show a campervan in a Surf Beach car park, parked next to a "no camping" sign.

On social media the tent overlooking Osbourne beach attracted debate around rental affordability and home-

Others pointed out the 'empty bottles of alcohol and chip packets were the giveaway"

"Pretty sure the people in the tent were schoolies or others recovering from a big night out, not people without other options for shelter," wrote Simon.

Free camping

In the summer of 2019/20, council received 40 complaints about illegal camping across the shire.

At last December's meeting, councillors voted for officers to complete a Strategic Review of Camping in the shire, with Cr Rochelle Halstead highlighting potential missed opportunities in the free camping market.

However, the review, released at the June council meeting, stopped short of making any concrete recommendations because of the considerable costs involved.

'The review has also been unable to determine whether the significant and ongoing investment required to establish and implement low cost and free camping would generate enough economic benefit to be something that council should pursue," it found.

The review concluded a caravan and camping market not appropriately managed especially free camping would have environmental Another said "this is what impacts and potential to im-

Mozzie control yet to start

Despite an expected bumper mozzie season Bass Coast Shire is yet to implement mosquito control.

Last year there were 15 confirmed cases of the mosquitoborne disease Ross River virus on Phillip Island. According to the Health Department there have been no notified cases of the virus this season, with the last case recorded in March this year.

The shire was responding to reports of increased mozzie numbers following recent wet weather, but a spokesperson said they did not have a "pest controller actively implementing mosquito control at this

They said owners and occupiers should control mosquito breeding grounds.

In previous years, the shire said six of the seven mozzie hot spots in Bass Coast are found on Phillip Island: the Rhyll and Newhaven swamps, Fishers wetland near Churchill Island, Rhyll foreshore, Silverleaves, gun club south of Rhyll, as well as the mouth of the Powlett River at Kilcunda.

Rosie the Shark may finally get a new home

Rosie the Shark will finally be given a permanent home after VCAT overturned a Melbourne council and approved plans for a shark education centre.

More than three years after he rescued the world-famous Rosie from Wildlife Wonderland Giant Earthworm Museum in Bass, owner Tom Kapitany was this month given approval by VCAT to build the centre – but with several major conditions.

In February 2019 Tom, who runs Crystal World in Devon Meadows, removed Rosie from her formaldehyde-filled tank at the derelict museum in Bass, and trucked the five-metrelong fish to Crystal World.

In a massive operation, 15,000 litres of the carcinogenic formal-dehyde was removed and a crane hoisted Rosie and her 10-tonne tank on to a truck, driven 60km to what was to be a temporary home in Crystal World's carpark.

Tom said Rosie had since continued to live in the carpark in her tank on display free of charge tank, on display free of charge. He said his plan for the "most well-known shark in the world" was to build a 400m^2 exhibition building, including a specially-designed concrete slab to hold Rosie's tank.

After the City of Casey rejected the plans earlier this year – because it was an "inappropriate development in a farming green wedge zone" – Tom took that council to

It was back in the 1990s that the former Wildlife Wonderland Giant Earthworm Museum took possession of the shark, with the roof of the museum's special shark removed in order for it to be housed in a specially-designed tank.

VCAT, in the past fortnight winning the case for an "exhibition centre for a sealed tank containing a taxidermy display of Rosie the Shark".

However, Tom said the win was a costly, Pyrrhic victory with the planning permit conditions so restrictive it would damage his business and mean a reduction in staff.

"After three years attempting to negotiate with Casey Council town planning I've spent close to $200,000 in expenses trying to get permits to build an exhibition space for Rosie the Shark," said Tom, adding there were no objectors other than the council.

"I will now need to spend over $50,000 in the next two months, to comply to some questionable requirements as well as let go some staff as a consequence.

"This is before I even start to build the extension to house Rosie the Shark.

"I should be elated that I won, but I'm not, I'm angry"

Tom said he had two years to build the centre and he would now need to "scrape funds together".

Rosie

Rosie became a social media sensation and hit the international headlines in 2019 after a series of You-Tube videos – filmed by a subculture of trespassers known as urban explorers – went globally viral, spawning unwanted vandals and trespassers.

Tom said Rosie was still in good condition and the public interest in her continued.

After initially washing out her tank with water (neutralising the water with baking soda), Tom and his team opted to preserve Rosie in glycerine – a colourless, odourless, sweet, non-toxic liquid.

Despite the considerable costs of rescuing Rosie, he does not regret taking on the responsibility of the shark, which was donated to Crystal World.

Tom is a geologist, botanist and entrepreneur who travels the world chasing fossils and who also owns the National Dinosaur Museum in Canberra, with Crystal World selling geological specimens, fossils, meteorites, crystals and minerals.

The Grand Princess cruise ship is due to arrive at Phillip Island on Thursday December 15, carrying over 2100 passengers, with many expected to disembark and explore the island. Photo: Princess Cruises.

Grand Princess arrives this week

The Grand Princess cruise ship is due to arrive at Phillip Island on Thursday December 15.

aged in response to national guidelines, and stressed that every ship had a CovidSafe Management Plan,

The ship can carry over 2500 passengers and 1100 crew, with many expected to disembark and explore the island and surrounds.

Destination Phillip Island said the ship will have a higher percentage of domestic passengers than the Seabourne Odyssey which has visited twice this month.

Already seven coaches have been booked to take passengers to the Penguin Parade.

Bass Coast Shire Council said final numbers were yet to be confirmed, but at least 2100 passengers were on board, and shuttle buses will run every 20 minutes.

Prearranged tours available to passengers included Wildlife Coast Cruises, the Chocolate Factory, National Vietnam Veterans Museum, Penguin Parade and other Nature Parks attractions, the GP Circuit, A Maze'N Things, Rusty Water Brewery and Cape Woolamai.

Some passengers prefer just to disembark and visit Rhyll or Cowes to shop or eat.

The Grand Princess' arrival coincides with increasing Covid numbers in the region. The ship was at the centre of a Covid outbreak earlier this month, and was diverted from Newcastle to Melbourne, due to concerns from local health authorities about the large number of confirmed cases.

If a similar situation arose with this week's visit to Phillip Island, Bass Coast Health CEO Jan Child said trained Human Biosecurity Officers will support the response to any potential health risks that are identified.

"The local response is determined by the assessed risk and management required," Ms Child said.

"To prepare ahead of each cruise ship arrival, Bass Coast Health (BCH), Ambulance Victoria Gippsland and Gippsland Region Public Health Unit (GRPHU) meet to assess the health risk on board."

Ms Child said ahead of a ship's arrival, GRPHU receives information from the medical crew on board the cruise ship. Information is then relayed as required.

"We have had several meetings already and they have been very well planned and very helpful to understand risk and actions required locally."

If Covid is discovered onboard a ship, Ms Child said it would be managed in response to national guidelines, and stressed that every ship had a CovidSafe Management Plan, which included testing, isolation and people remaining on the boat in isolation if positive.

"If positive cases needed local medical support, that would be facilitated by Ambulance Victoria and patients would be transported to Wonthaggi Hospital or a Melbourne hospital, depending on their needs."

Ms Child said while BCH recognised the economic boost the ships provided, sadly Covid was present in the community.

"We ask all our community members to choose actions to support prevention of transmission – vaccination, face masks, hand hygiene, physical distancing, ventilation.

"We would specifically suggest to local businesses that they instigate these measures to keep themselves and their customers safe."

Visitor numbers

The December 1 visit from the Seabourne Odyssey saw 140 of the 196 passengers on board visit the island.

Shuttle buses ran every 30 minutes between Rhyll and Cowes, transporting passengers and crew, although some passengers organised private transfers or used local taxis to explore the area.

Many of the passengers booked on official tours, including the Penguin Parade, Koalas, Cape Woolamai and Rhyll Inlet.

Sixty passengers went to the Penguin Parade.

Cruise operators Carnival Australia said feedback from passengers on the visit was "exceptional", with "many guests saying that Phillip Island was the highlight of the voyage".

The ship anchored off Silverleaves and a tender boat carried passengers to the wharf at Rhyll, where they were met by staff from Council's Visitor Information Centre.

Destination Phillip Island also had a staff member and volunteers at Olive Justice Place in Cowes to assist visitors.

The visit on December 7 saw larger numbers of passengers (310), with approximately 145 disembarking and coming into Cowes.

Official tours included seal watching with Wildlife Coast Cruises, Antarctic Journey at the Nobbies, Phillip Island Explore, Phillip Island Highlights and Koalas.

Shark sightings spook some The weekend's warm weather saw comments on the Phillip Island Noplenty of people head to the beach, but there were a few unwanted swimmers in the water!

There were reported shark sightings at San Remo and Surf Beach on Sunday.

The San Remo sighting just before 2pm was between the pier and the Phillip Island Bridge, while the Surf Beach sighting was at 3.15pm off Surfies Point

The alerts alarmed some, with ticeboard page noting the San Remo pier was a popular place for kids to jetty jump.

"I was surfing out at Forest Caves this morning and did see a decent size fin, thought it was a dolphin ... and god I bloody hope it was," posted one local surfer. However others weren't overly worried.

"It's mostly likely harmless and more scared of you," said one.

"Probably hundreds there all the time," said another.

Earlier this month, beach walkers videoed several fins close to shore at Silverwater Beach.

After examining the footage, both Phillip Island Nature Parks rangers and the crew of Wildlife Coast Cruises agreed it was bottlenose dolphins, based on the shape of the dorsal fins and the swimming motion.

They also said it would be unlikely to see sharks swimming together like that in southern Australia.

Vigilance on council accountability

If there's one thing voters and tax- the council meeting agenda. payers expect from politicians, it's transparency.

And if there's one thing they expect from the media, it's to cast a spotlight on that accountability (or lack of).

Example #1

One area routinely scrutinised is politician expenses.

"Peter Dutton Headlines like charged taxpayers $465 for flight on day he was special guest at private event", or "Chris Bowen billed taxpayers for whirlwind trip to Labor fundraiser", especially get the goat of taxpavers. It's our money.

We work hard for it. We'd like to know how it's being spent. And when it's misspent, we get angry. Yet the Advertiser has this year come under fire by Bass Coast Shire councillors for casting a spotlight on their annual expenses

In August we ran a report "Which councillor is the costliest?", detailing that "Island Ward's Ronnie Bauer is the least expensive, while Bunurong's Leticia Laing is one of the costliest, with the highest car mileage budget".

The regular update on councillor expenses was released at the August meeting, showing "that for the current term to June 30, 2022, former mayor and Nationals candidate in the state election Brett Tessari had the highest overall cost at $31,246 with $9336 for training and $2617 for car mileage", the article stated.

"He was followed by current mayor Cr Michael Whelan with a total $22,174, including $3155 for mileage and $2926 for training.

"Cr Leticia Laing, (the then deputy mayor), totalled $20,482, including $4,322 for car mileage - which she has attributed to attending library board meetings - $8540 for training and conferences and $1418 for childcare.

"Cr Ronnie Bauer had the least costs

Following this report, Cr Laing wrote a piece for an online magazine claiming the article was "intentional shaming of working women" and she had been "exposed" for claiming childcare expenses.

She was supported by other councillors, including Cr Clare Le Serve who at the November council meeting said councillors should "not be rebuked by the community or by the press for having higher costs in travel, conferences or training or childcare".

"I don't believe it's a very positive thing for them to have that held against the councillor. This is their workplace and critical for them being a councillor," Cr Le Serve said.

We agree councillors are entitled to claim legitimate expenses incurred in carrying out their role.

The Advertiser has no argument with that. For 33 years we have published successive councillor costs and expense reports - as presented by the shire annually for ratepayer scrutiny without a problem.

The information appears publicly in

Furthermore, we did not criticise Cr Laing for claiming childcare costs.

So to be accused of "the intentional shaming of working women" borders on the ridiculous.

It is necessary - and critical - for the media to keep vigil on use of ratepayer money and we would go one step further and urge the shire - in the name of transparency and accountability - to provide a publicly-available breakdown of individual transactions, such as training courses and travel ex-

More examples

There have been other recent questions around shire transparency.

Last month Cr Les Larke told the Advertiser a ban had recently been imposed on him, stopping his emails being sent to the mayor Cr Michael Whelan, with emails instead redirected to a shire staff member.

A council spokesperson confirmed the email ban was in place because of the "number and type of emails" being sent from Cr Larke to Cr Whelan.

"If a councillor or staff member feels their mental health and wellbeing is impacted there's an occupational health and safety obligation to take reasonable action," the spokesperson said. Cr Larke said there had been "no ongoing campaign, no personal vendetta, no personality clashes".

But with a lack of transparency around the process, it became impossible to judge if the email ban was an appropriate response.

There are several other examples as well. In July Cr David Rooks moved a motion to remove public question time, reasoning that with the advent of technology - phones, emails, social media question time was "inefficient". He was supported in the push by Cr Laing, but other councillors quashed the move, rightly describing it as anti-democratic. This month the Advertiser learnt the shire has reported the Sentinel-Times to the Local Government Inspectorate for a sentence in an article that could have indicated a possible council leak on a story about a budget blowout on the Cowes Cultural Centre. The article stated: "the Sentinel-Times has since received a firm indication that a cost blowout is on the cards.'

The line between responsible reporting and a free press is complex and an imperfect science. Yet all these examples suggest a willingness by the shire and some councillors to seek to subdue the media, as well as any dissenters.

The charter for a free press in Australia states freedom of the press means the right of the people to be informed on matters of public interest so they may exercise their rights and duties as citizens.

"In a truly democratic society, open debate, discussion, criticism and dissent are central to the process of generating informed and considered choices." the charter states.

We, for one, will continue to be an exponent of these democratic principles.

Jordan returned as member for Bass

"In a couple of voting centres, a very small number of voters opted to complete an information report as a record of attending the site and to ensure they were not fined for failing to vote," the VEC spokesperson said.

"No voting centres were closed before 6pm, and anyone still in the queue at 6pm was provided the opportunity to vote."

When asked how the shortfall occurred, the spokesperson said prior to election day, ballot papers were allocated to each voting centre based on historical numbers in each area, plus the local knowledge of election managers about events that may have significantly changed those

"On top of this, we add a contingency of extra ballot papers to each voting centre to allow for more voters than we predict will come through the spokesperson exthat day,"

"However, if a voting centre attracts a significantly higher number of voters than expected, particularly from other districts, the original allocation of ballot papers to that centre may not be sufficient.

"Voting centres are supported by VEC officers out in the field who hold additional ballot papers which they can deliver to voting centres as required.

"If it appears that a voting centre is running low on ballot papers, voting centre managers immediately raise this with those officers so they can respond and deliver a top-up as quickly

"This is precisely what happened for those Bass voting centres that ran low on election day."

The VEC said the turnout for the Bass electorate in the 2018 state election was higher than the state average - 91.06 per cent compared to 90.15 per cent.

When asked if the ballot paper shortage could have impacted on the current election result, the spokesperson said voting numbers seemed consistent with previous elections.

"Though final turnout figures for the 2022 State election have not yet been calculated, Bass' current turnout (89.11 per cent) is higher than the overall state-wide turnout (87.13 per cent), so this appears relatively consistent with 2018 figures."

The VEC did not respond to the Advertiser's question if the ballot paper issues could be grounds for disputing the election result.

Bass was the last seat to be called in the election, with a nail biting finish. Sixteen VEC representatives, along with candidate scrutineers, spent two days doing the preference distribution at the Wonthaggi the Town Hall.

In the provisional results, Ms Crugnale was ahead by 211 votes and in the final count, won the seat by 202

The final result after distribution of preferences was 20,803 (50.24 per cent) to Ms Crugnale and 20,601 (49.76 per cent) to Mr Brown.

The win in Bass gives Labor 56 seats - one more than the 55 seats it won in 2018's "Danslide" election.

Residents weigh in on Erehwon upgrades

A makeover of Erehwon Point should make it safer for early morning joggers and add a path in front of car parks so pedestrians aren't forced to walk on the road.

Initial feedback into Bass Coast Shire's Reimagine Erehwon Point Project, which is open until February 6, found users also want the area to be more wheelchair friendly, with pathways currently too steep

Several residents commented on the need for a pathway the length of the stone wall, along the Cowes Esplanade.

"Wall is too long. People need to walk behind vehicles and on the road to get to the next opening in the wall," one wrote.

Safety was a key issue.

"Lighting in this area is faulty in some places, and non-existent up toward the road. It makes access for early morning/late evening running and walking risky."

Another highlighted the need for a pedestrian crossing where the Esplanade joins Steele Street at The Waves apartments.

Accessibility was an issue for many, with only two disabled car parks, while paths "are steep and on an angle, which is not ideal for people using mobility aids", and toilets could only be accessed via stairs or at a distance from the jetty triangle.

"Mulch everywhere for no apparent reason as there are no plants anywhere. Much more difficult for those with mobility issues to walk over it than paths, grass or dirt," wrote one respondent.

Added another: "The top of Lovers Walk leads on to dirt, with the concrete path not connecting to the ramp. This needs to be resolved.

"Stairs to the beach are way too steep, difficult to walk down, although rail helps.'

was diagnosed with an aggressive breast cancer. A GoFundMe campaign has been set up to help the family.

Support for family's cancer battle

At the start of 2022, the future was looking bright for Valerie Garcia and her husband Kieran Black.

The couple were renovating their Cape Woolamai home and baby number two was on the way.

Their world was shattered when, at 35 weeks pregnant, Valerie was diagnosed with Stage 3, Triple Negative breast cancer.

The baby needed to be induced early so Valerie could start chemotherapy.

The months since then have been a blur of juggling treatments and side-effects, alongside the demands of caring for a newborn baby and a toddler.

The impact on the family's emotional and financial state has been immense.

With Valerie unable to work and the family income halved, Kieran has had to take extended leave from his job to care for Valerie and the children.

This month, Valerie's friend Leanne Munchan set up a GoFund-Me campaign to try and help the young family.

As well as trying to cover all the regular bills and medical expenses, Valerie is looking at alternative therapies and supplements, to try and complement the chemotherapy and radiology she is undergoing.

As Triple Negative Breast Cancer is rare and aggressive and unable to be treated with the standard regime of breast cancer drugs, conventional treatment options are limited and the couple want to explore every possible option to give Valerie the best chance of survival.

Kieran said the situation was desperate, and the alternative therapies they were looking at were not covered by Medicare, with the costs running into the thousands.

"We really need community support and the response so far has been amazing.

"So many friends have told us they don't know what to do to help, and the fund is a way for people to be able to help and show they care.

"I have been really impressed by the generosity of people. He said throughout her treatment, Valerie, who is a remedial massage therapist and personal trainer, had focused on healthy eating and supplements.

"But buying organic vegetables is three times more expensive."

He said each week they were making choice about buying organic food or supplements to help Valerie, or buying plaster to finish the renovation of the children's room and the kitchen, to make it safe and liveable.

He said normally the family was extremely private, but he would shamelessly promote the GoFund-Me campaign to help his wife.

Prior to her diagnosis, Valerie ran a successful business from her home and Kieran said the loss of the business was not just a financial impact.

"She had built a career and a business and was financially independent. She feels guilty that she can't work." Kieran said.

"The last thing she needs is that kind of stress with money."

He said on top of coping with regular bills, medical costs and constant appointments, their life had changed irrevocably.

"We thought everything was going great. Valerie's business had really taken off, she'd employed someone as well.

"Now, we don't know if she will ever be able to work again. The business model as it was pre-cancer can't exist anymore.'

With further surgery and then a daily regime of radiotherapy scheduled for this month, any money raised through the campaign will help cover household bills and living expenses and keep the family afloat.

"The funds will also allow us to buy organics and supplements to try and help with her recovery.

"And maybe we can finish off the kids' bedroom."

He also said he hoped sharing their story will remind other women of the importance to get checked if they have any concerns about their health.

"Valerie is so healthy, she is a personal trainer, doesn't smoke or drink and had such a healthy lifestyle.

"You'd think she'd be the last person in the world to get cancer."

Be inspired by a range of gardens in small spaces, in back yards and on broader acreage, at the BCAL 2023 Edible Gardens Weekend on February 4 and 5.

Edible Gardens return

Fifteen local gardeners are doing a dance with this year's very changeable spring weather as they prepare for Bass Coast Adult Learning's (BCAL) second Bass Coast Edible Gardens Weekend, to be held on February 4 and 5.

Save the date into your calendars and you can look forward to being inspired by a range of gardens in small spaces, in back yards and on broader acreage.

Some of last February's favourite gardens are back again, joined by fantastic newcomers. In 2023 some of the gardeners will be selling fresh produce and other gardeningrelated items, while others will offer advice on issues such as managing beehives and composting.

We know that gardening helped us through lockdowns over the past few years. Now edible gardening can help us battle inflation. Participating gardeners are always keen to offer tips on what to grow and how to "grow your own" and cut down your food bill. Fruit, veggies and herbs fresh from the garden are also hard to beat for taste as well as price!

Look out for more news about BCAL's Bass Coast Edible Gardens Weekend on February 4-5, 2023.

A brochure will be available soon, providing the list of participating gardens and information on how to buy tickets. Or check the website www.basscoastediblegardens.com and follow on Facebook and Instagram.

offshore call for casting help

Offshore Theatre is seeking an actor of non-Caucasian appearance for a role in their forthcoming production of "Australians All ..." by Jonathon Biggins.

Chester describes himself as an ABV – Australian Born Vietnamese - but we will consider actors of His extra-curricular duty is to join the Australian Day organising committee where he needs to navigate his way through working with this complicated group of residents.

The Phillip Island Scout group had a sell-out Christmas tree sale on the weekend.

Over 300 trees were snapped up by people eager to get their Christmas decorating underway, raising much needed funds for the group.

As the Scouts' major fundraiser for the year, the group was thrilled at the level of support from the community and thanked everyone who came along and bought a tree.

Purple Hen best on show

For the third consecutive year, Rick Lacey from Rhyll-based Purple Hen Wines took home the Best Wine award at the Gippsland Wine Show this month.

Phillip Island Winery and Silverwater Vineyard also featured in the medal tally.

Wineries across Gippsland showcased their wines in the annual 2021 Westpac Gippsland Wine Show with 43 medals, including 11 gold, awarded at the annual celebration held for 110 guests at Cape Paterson on December 8.

Rick Lacey from Purple Hen Wines took home the Best Wine of Show, sponsored by Westpac, this time for the Purple Hen 2022 Off-Dry Riesling, which also won Best Aromatic White Wine (96 points).

Rick also won the trophy and top gold for Best Pinot Noir (96), and won Best Sauvignon Blanc with a silver award (90).

In an impressive result for a first vintage, San Remo's Silverwaters Vineyard, was awarded a pair of silver medals for the 2021 Pinot Noir (90) and the 2021 Chardonnay (90) and bronze for their 2021 Shiraz and 2021 Cabernet Sauvignon.

Island Winery Phillip picked up a bronze medal for the Tall Timber Fume Blanc.

Marcus Satchell and Lisa Inverloch-based Dirty Three Wines also had a successful evening, winning trophies for both the Best Red and White Wines of Provenance and Best Chardonnay, presented by Cr Brett Tessari.

The Red was awarded to their Dirt 2 Pinot Noir 2016, 2019 and 2021 set, and the best White Wine of Provenance was awarded to their Standing contribution to the Gippsland wine sector.

Riesling 2015, 2018, 2022.

Chief Judge, Sarah Fagan of De Bortoli, said that winemakers enter three vintages from a five-year period for this category, which allows judges to look for consistency of quality and longevity of the wines – a longer-term view of the vineyard and winemaker's expertise.

Bass River Winery, Glen Forbes, won Best Rose, and came away with several med-als, including gold for its Bass River 1835 – 2021 Pinot Noir (95), silver for the 1835 – 2018 Sparkling Brut (93) and six bronze. Loch-based Gippsland Wine Company picked up silver for its 2021 Loch Vineyard Chardonnay and bronze for its 2021 Viognier.

Other winners included Cannibal Creek Vineyard, of Tynong North, Blue Gables Vineyard, while Lightfoot Wines of East Gippsland won the Most Successful Exhibitor trophy, picking up multiple awards.

Ken and Juliet Eckersley from Nicholson River Winery were the first recipients of the Eckersley Award, a perpetual trophy to recognise out-member of the original Gippsland Grapegrowers and Winemakers Association, nearly 40 years ago. The group eventually became Wine Gippsland, and Ken has been in committee roles throughout.

Wine Gippsland Chair, Alistair Hicks, said the annual show tasting and awards dinner was an opportunity for Gippsland's wine producers and supporters to celebrate a successful year of growth. He said Gippsland wine is enjoying increased momentum, both with a wave of new members, many of them first-generation winemakers, and a raised profile for the region due to Gippsland's ability to consistently deliver outstanding quality wines.

Marcus Satchell paid tribute to the winemakers who supported him when he began winemaking 18 years ago, and to the example set by elders of the industry.
"Great wine really comes down to people, place and passion," he said, noting the collegiate nature of winemaking in Gippsland helps to grow the industry.

In her review of the wines,

Ms Fagan said that the Pinot Noir and Chardonnay continue to be strong classes for Gippsland, reflected in the number of medals in those classes showing the suitability for these varieties, with flavour characteristics unique to the region.

The ceremony at Cape Paterson Surf Lifesaving Club was attended by representatives from all the Gippsland councils, Destination Gippsland, Westpac, wine industry suppliers, and other groups involved in food and drink tourism.

Winners of the major trophies of the 2022 Westpac Gippsland Wine Show: Rob Lightfoot (Lightfoot Wines) Most Successful Exhibitor, Rick Lacey (Purple Hen) Best Wine of Show, Alistair Butt (Lightfoot Wines) and Marcus Satchell (Dirty Three Wines) who won Best Red and Best White Wines of Provenance and Best Chardonnay.

Controversial charge scheme continues

Residents and property owners in Surf Beach and Sunderland Bay have one more week to provide feedback on concept design options for a proposed Special Charge Scheme.

The scheme has caused a war of words between residents who support the scheme and those who oppose it, as well as with Bass Coast Shire Council.

The Special Charge Scheme involves constructing roads and drainage upgrades in the area, as well as footpaths and traffic calming options.

The concept designs were mailed or emailed to all property owners in November.

"This is to inform landowners of the available concept development options and allow them to choose a preferred option," a spokesperson for Bass Coast Shire Council said.

"The options presented are based on concept development feedback from property owners and the community reference group. This stage is not about whether a special charge scheme will proceed or not. Feedback will be able to be provided up until December 21."

Under the current timeline, Council is due to adopt a preferred design option in February or March next year.

Council said every property owner will then have the opportunity to make a submission – either to support or oppose the special charge scheme.

Once all submissions have been considered, the council may decide to abandon the scheme, prepare a new scheme (due to the need to significantly modify the designs), or proceed, with or without minor variations.

Although many residents oppose the proposed special charge scheme for Surf Beach and Sunderland Bay, others are in favour, with one saying "the excessive dust, pot holing and muddy roads with minimal maintenance is starting to wear a bit thin"

It is at this stage in the process that the scheme would be abandoned if there were 51 per cent or more property owners that opposed it.

"Should property owners not provide a submission they are not counted as yes or no votes, however if they don't respond then they are leaving the decision up to the Councillors that are representatives of the community." the council website states.

Opposition

The Say NO group is made up of residents and owners who oppose the proposed scheme.

The group believed there are less expensive, environmentally sensitive options available, which are being ignored by the council.

"The group agrees that dust and drainage are important issues that can be resolved without having to spend over $30 million, to be paid by the local residents," spokesperson Maxine Sando said.

The scheme has ignited fierce debate within the community, as some residents have campaigned for many years to have the dust and drainage issues on the estates fixed.

The campaign of the Say NO group has attracted criticism from supporters of the scheme, who want the council consultation process to be able to run its course.

Meanwhile group members claim council has shut them out of the process, refusing to meet with them and address their concerns.

Last week, Ross Bencraft, a member of Say NO posted on the Phillip Island Community noticeboard, outlining the group's concerns.

"We have expertise within the group who can present alternative solutions to effectively solve the problems, eg dust, without necessitating the level of environmental impact and destruction that BCSC's limited options will cause," he posted, claiming the council was uninterested in these potential solutions.

Mr Bencraft also stated the cost of the proposed scheme was a major concern, stating ratepayers could be looking at paying between $23,000 -$34,000 or more per property.

Some residents raised concerns about the ongoing dust issues and the potholes in the road, with one stating "the excessive dust, pot holing and muddy roads with minimal maintenance is starting to wear a bit thin".

Another said they didn't know why the council was persisting with the process, given 70 per cent of residents opposed it.

However another said they intended to vote yes and the no voters should get their heads "out of the sand (potholes) ... All our properties will increase in value. Great investment. No one will lose in the long run".

Some people raised concerns that the petition being circulated by the Say NO group contained signatures of people who do not live or own property on the two estates, however they were assured those names were being filtered out of the petition.

Regardless of the number of signatures on the petition, the process for the Special Charge Scheme, must follow the steps which are set out in legislation.

Once Council has adopted a preferred option, property owners will be able to make a submission.

At this stage, if 51 per cent of property owners oppose the scheme, it will be abandoned.

Sunderland Bay and Surf Beach speed humps

Speed Humps every 100 metres on every street in Sunderland Bay and Surf Beach, that is council's vision. Oh what a sorry sight! Around Easter 2022 council conducted an analysis of traffic volumes using traffic classifiers that can detect times, speeds and volumes of all traffic from bicycles to Road Trains and individually list the data. I would be very doubtful if any vehicles were detected above the sign posted speed for the areas.

By Council stating speed humps are required, Council is acknowledging that with the new roadworks of sealed roads and kerb and gutter that vehicle speeds in our quiet estate areas will increase substantially, therefore the safety for ratepayers, road users and our prolific wildlife will be severely impacted. Almost all streets and roads in Cowes do not have speed humps. Speed humps are normally installed only after all other options to address speed issues have been exhausted. Driver education, visual speed signage and enforceable reduction in speed limits are but a few.

Maybe the speed humps that BCSC want for our area are the "unique" part of when council continually states to us ratepayers that "we understand that the Surf Beach/Sunderland Bay estates have a unique character and will definitely be part of the concept plan development".

Actually, we the ratepayers are also still waiting to view the Concept Plan which so far is invisible. We have seen a sketch section but no plan (aerial view) of the whole of the estates and yet in less than two months our council is going to make a decision to proceed with the Special Charge Scheme, without all of the relevant information.

I would urge council to investigate all options to reduce speed before they install the last resort option of speed humps as a first option. As Pioneer Bay residents have stated, the speed humps installed have not reduced the speed on their streets but for the residents with speed humps in front of their property it has increased the noise levels and therefore impacted on sleep.

Charge scheme unaffordable

There has been much to and fro between members of the Say No group (Surf Beach Special Charge Scheme) and the Phillip Island community. Some reasonable, some bordering on abuse. Some just abusive simply for living in an area and having an opinion on the future of the estate we live in, at an extortionate cost to ratepayers denied genuine choice.

The Say No group encompasses a broad group of individuals who object to what BCSC is trying to force

There are a broad variety of reasons for our group's rejection of this scheme. Many from an environmental stance, through to a rejection on purely financial position, which seems to attract an even more derogatory response from those who have zero compassion for those who are experiencing sleepless nights resulting from BCSC's inflexible position.

And those of you who have shamed these people and suggested that all affected ratepayers care about is the dollar cost, shame on you. Some ratepayers simply cannot afford this cahame.

Hence, I want to speak today on behalf of those who oppose the scheme on a purely financial basis.

The cost of living has recently gone through the roof. Everything – mortgages ($1000 per month on average), food prices, energy bills, council rates ad nauseum – has risen frighteningly.

Can you imagine what this must be like for ratepayers on a fixed income?

Nay sayers say "there are payment plans available."

Allow me to clarify.

The payment plan allows ratepayers to avoid a lump sum payment by selecting to make 40 quarterly payments over 10 years.

The reality: This means that (at a conservative $30,000 estimate) ratepayers will pay $750 extra per quarter ... $3000 per annum ... for 10 years. Effectively this more than doubles your rates.

Seriously and honestly ... how does BCSC expect struggling fixed income ratepayers, who can already barely get by, to manage this extra burden?

Out of touch? Moi? Councillors ... you need to wake up. This is the real world that many of our residents live

ın. Ross Bencraft, Surf Beach

Alarming impacts

Now that the council's independent consultants report into the environmental impacts of the proposed charge scheme has been completed, its findings are alarming. The effects on endangered species and the increased stormwater levels entering the wetlands area are just a couple of major concerns.

Shouldn't the council start to investigate other options than have been produced so far? This is a chance to become an example of best practice in areas of diverse environmental significance and sensitivity, but unfortunately the council cannot think outside the square. Their only approach to date is the cookie-cutter way of dealing with everything – one option fits all.

Come on! This is not suburbia, it's an important indigenous flora and fauna area. We need a different approach. Let's start investigating other options.

Merry Christmas councillors. David Clements, Surf Beach

No room for PICAL

Isn't PICAL focal point of community in Cowes? For seniors, definitely. So many needs fulfilled by PICAL, so many people.

Yet, when commanded to prepare for growth, Shire delivers, take-it-orleave-it plan to split PICAL-HQ size less than half previous, many rooms, small rooms, so even less people space.

Usual space per person 4m². Planning application notes "94 students and $60 \, \text{patrons}$ " so more than $600 \, \text{m}^2$. Floor plans, people space split between six rooms, $160 \, \text{m}^2$ usable, so space $40 \, \text{max}$.

Car parking, exemption, 58 spaces reduced by 55. Exemption usually 50 per cent but this is 95 per cent! Survey reports plenty street car parks except many to be scrapped per streetscape plan.

Fuss encouraging cycling but PICAL needs secure parking, with shelter, 20 places for staff and 20 for students, exemption to one and five. No shade. No shelter. Mobility scooters, no mention?

Minimal windows north side, daylight and warmth only to store, meeting room and toilet. No eaves, no awning. Windows single glazed. No mention of energy rating. No rooftop Front car park, yet again, impermeable surface, heat island.

There's mention of garden but three sides on paling fence line, except skinny 1.5m gap along south. emergency exit at west enclosed by 1.8m fence, then 1.5m path. Is insurance even possible?

Was it ever sensible to cram PICAL-HQ into a quarter acre residential block? False economy on steroids. Who's gonna save us?

Cemetery maintenance

Bass Coast Shire Council is spreading its wings. At its meeting on December 14 councillors will be asked to vote on a motion to advise the Municipal Association of Victoria to advise our Prime Minister's office to advise those overseas who run the Nobel Prizes that a new category is needed – for sustainability.

Noble gesture.

Closer to home, it is neither noble nor prizeworthy to expect we ordinary folk to visit our loved ones commemorated in San Remo Cemetery's Memorial Garden when it is overgrown and infested with weeds. Not to mention ugly patches in desperate need of replanting.

A shire crew brought the garden beds up to reasonable standard some months ago. But, like any garden, regular maintenance is required.

Why is that impossible?

Loo alert

One day last week after shopping at Aldi, I was in need of "spending a penny". With no public toilet in the immediate vicinity, I was glad I had the car to drive down Thompson Avenue where I could park as close as possible to the Esplanade. After walking from the car, across the Esplanade, down the steps, past the gents toilet (which has been cordoned off for months) and around to the ladies toilet to discover that it is now also cordoned off! I did however, gratefully discover a single unit toilet to use.

This story of desperation has occurred in the famous tourist town of Cowes! What do our tourists do when they or their children need a toilet? They may not be aware of the toilet block on the beach (there are no signs to tell you it's there).

In Wonthaggi recently, I noticed a new toilet block replacing an old dilapidated one. The new one is exactly what Cowes needs, including the parking bays nearby for easy access. Why wasn't a toilet block factored into the Olive Justice Development (or nearby)? Since the toilet on the corner of Thompson Avenue and Chapel Street was removed (and should never have been put there) and the old library toilet has gone, there is no public toilet block available near the shops north of Church Street.

The only public toilet in the whole shopping area is near Woolworths! Tourists and locals should not have to head to the beach for a toilet stop when they are shopping. This situation must surely be addressed urgently.

Christmas celebrations at Croquet Club

Last Sunday, the Phillip Island Croquet Club members, partners and friends gathered at its new pavilion in the Blue Gum Reserve for the club's very joyous Christmas breakup celebration and enjoyed the delicious Christmas fare provided by Kristos of Cowes.

Club President, John Swarbrick, informed the gathering that in 2024 the club would be celebrating 50 years of its existence.

The Club was initially formed after a few ladies started playing croquet on a home lawn, and the rest, as they say, is history.

The Club has had a successful croquet year with some newer members playing in the Gippsland pennant competition for the first time with some very good results.

It has also signed up new members to come and learn the croquet game. Looking for a new challenge, why not try croquet?

Golf croquet can be learned in minutes, can be played by the young and the not so young, the fit and not so fit.

Anyone interested in learning to play this wonderful game can contact the Secretary, Claire Earl, on 0403 690 237 or you are welcome to just come along to the club located in the Blue Gum Reserve, Dunsmore Road, Cowes, on Thursday or Friday mornings at 10am.

Special thanks to all the coaches, managers, parents and grandparents for supporting the players for training and matches, this is so important in junior sport.

The under 13s, coached by Brett DeBono (Inverloch) travelled to Eastern Park Warragul. Warragul won the toss and batted against LDCA's opening bowlers Jobe Williams (P Island) and Louis Reed (KLRSL) and were under pressure early, with Louis taking an early wicket finishing with 2 for 6 off 6 overs and Jobe 0 for 4 off

George Edwards (K'Burra) 0 for 15 off 5 overs bowled steadily together with Ty Debono (Inverloch) 2 for 4 breaking open the top order and then the three Phillip Island boys Brydon Marshall, Jackson Allan and Archie Williams bowled 9 overs for 10 runs with Brydon picking up a wicket.

Cooper Newman (Inverloch), 2 for 1 off three overs breaking Warragul's biggest partnership and from then on, they struggled to reach 8 for 71 off their

After the break Cooper Newman and Eamon Berryman opened the batting and had added 34 when Cooper was caught for 19, they lost Ty Debono run out without scoring and Hudson Guymer without scoring Archie Williams for 5 to be 4 for 48.

Then Eamon Berryman retired 22, Jobe Williams run out 32, Louis Reed retired 22, Max Johnston retired 20 pushed the score for LDCA to five for 140.

LDCA lost a couple of late wickets Brydon Marshall and Jackson Allan without scoring with Cole Munday remaining not out 0. LDCA finishing 7 for 140 off 34.3 overs a good team victory making it three wins out of three games, a great effort and giving them a great chance of playing in the finals on January 29.

The under 15s won the toss and batted on the Turf. There was a little bit in it early against a good Warragul attack; they lost their Captain Andot Mankhong (Club) for one with the score at ten, but Riley Harris and Rhys Newman (both Inverloch) steadied the ship and added 58 before Riley was a bit unlucky to be dismissed for 40.

Rhys lost three partners in taking the score to 100; Roy Checkley 1 (Korumburra), Heath Womersley 3 (P. Island) and Clayton Quaife 4 (OMK).

Rhys and Kade Berryman (Nerrena) added 42 when Rhys was dismissed for a very good 70 trying to push the score. Rhys has a big future in cricket and is now playing Seniors at Inverloch.

Kade made 16, Klayton Mc-Grath 7 (Imperials), Archie Casey 2 (Imperials), George McCausland 7 (P. Island) and Archie Gannon 3 (Nerrena), not out. All lost their wickets in an endeavour to push the score along.

LDCA with the possibility of rain, bowled their spinners 10 overs each; Kade Berryman 1 for 35 and Andot Mankhong 2 for 25. Both bowled well to have Warragul 5 for 84.

Jesse Jagoe 24 not out and Nate Murphy 25 not out added some late runs, but they finished 5 for 131 off their 50 overs losing by 33 runs with Joseph Sheehan 35 top scoring.

Archie Gannon 0 for 14, Archie Casey 0 for 14 and Klayton McGrath 0 for 5 bowled some late overs.

Riley Harris and Clayton Quaife both did a good job with the gloves.

Great to see Mitch Clark (Nerrena) and Evan Allaway (Casey/Korumburra) at the game, these two cricketers have been helping the under 15s squad training. Thank you both for your support of the boys.

Thank you to our sponsors of Junior Cricket: Wonthaggi Toyota, Evans Petroleum, Schreurs & Sons Tarwin, along with our new sponsors Luke Manders Plumbing (ex LDCA player) and MJA Accounting (Morrison Jefferis).

Scouts celebrate paddle gear project

Over the last 12 months, Phillip Island Scout Group received two grants from Bass Coast Shire Council through the Community Grants Program, to purchase sit-on-top kayaks, paddles, and associated safety gear as part of Scouting's Adventurous Activities challenges.

These challenges allow our Scouting youth, and leaders, to try out and pursue activities they might not otherwise be able to do, to set goals and pursue these activities to whatever level of skills they want, learning responsible risk-taking, leadership, and working in small teams' skills, which is what scouting is all about.

These adventurous activities are based firstly on the core skills of scouting: bushcraft, bushwalking, and camping, and includes landbased activities in three categories of alpine, cycling, and vertical, and water-based activities: aquatics, boating, and paddling.

"These grants allowed us to purchase four double kayaks, two single kayaks and paddles, so our youth can be taken out in small groups with leaders qualified to Paddle Australia standard, to make the most of living in this wonderful part of the world," a Scouts spokesperson said.

"We also purchased personal flotation devices, paddling jackets to keep dry and warm while out on the water, helmets, and carts to be able to walk the kayaks down to the beach.

While we are out and about in these kayaks, we will also be able to study the aquatic environment in this area, which is also an important part of understanding and caring for our local environment.

This Adventurous Activity under the paddling category will allow the scouts to combine groups of youngest members, Cubs, with the progressively older members Scouts, Venturers and Rovers, to all learn paddling skills with the assistance of qualified leaders, with the youth gaining skills in the nine stages of the Outdoor Adventure Skills framework.

'This allows our youth who are older or have more advanced skills to be able to sign off these stages for those youth who have gained skills up to two stages below them."

Island cricketers keep their winning streak

A2 Cricket

Following a strong win last week against Nyora, the A2 Sharks looked to keep the winning streak going this week against Glen Alvie.

The Sharks won the toss and elected to bowl. This decision was supported as Glen Alvie lost two quick wickets thanks to a strong start from Clint Wilson and George McCausland.

Heath Womersley kept the pressure on in the middle leading to three of his own wickets.

Tim Niven and Clint continued the onslaught leaving Glen Alvie 7-102 however Glen Alvie's captain was still not out, and he began to put the foot down making a hardfought century.

He didn't have much support from the other end as Glen Alvie made it to 190 before going all out.

Kohen Beaumont and Sarith Angelo opened the batting for the Sharks getting us off to a strong start before Kohen chipped one to a fielder.

This brought Tom Blackwell to the crease. He and Angelo built a strong partnership before Angelo was dismissed for 41.

Skipper Clint Wilson put on a powerful partnership with Tom leading the Sharks to 144 before Clint was caught.

Dave Womersley was next in, and he and Blackwell saw the Island through to the end.

Connor looked promising early, although a few nice shots proved the outfield slower than expected.

Unfortunately, Max was caught early off a leading edge and when Connor skied a pull-shot, we were in early trouble at 2/11.

Henry Peppard and Jack Keating began the recovery mission and after a few overs of consolidation, the pair began to build a nice partnership, the runs starting flow with some great shots and good running making up for the slow outfield, getting us to the drinks break at 2/85 off 20 overs.

The break didn't help Henry who was trapped LBW for a very well made 35

Andrew Finlayson joined Jack and the pair continued on at a steady rate, the score reaching 115 as Jack brought up an excellent 50 in the 26th over, but was then dismissed caught behind the next ball to a belter of a delivery.

Andrew Tolley came and went for a quick-fire 12, next in Andy O'Brien, sponsored by Rusteeze, made a positively glacial 6.

Tarryn Allan joined Finno and when the latter was out for a solid 30, we were 157 with three overs Tarryn finished not out on 12 as we completed our innings reaching 166 off our 40 overs.

With the wind picking up and the outfield getting faster by the minute, we needed to start well.

The skipper opened with Toll and Dan Caffieri, and although they created some chances, anything loose was jumped on and now racing over the outfield to the flection of his great spell. boundary.

50, Tarryn was brought on with youth in our side, some great signs Harry Arceo, and young H struck with his second delivery clean

With the scoreboard slowing, the Nerrena batsmen took off for a single, Jack Huther diving spectacularly, getting the ball in to the keeper, with both batsmen at one end it was thrown to Harry, and it

With the score 2/80 at drinks, the game was in the balance, and although the fielding was excellent and we were bowling well and without luck, the Nerrena pair were looking like cruising to victory pushing the score into the 130s.

Tarryn came back into the attack and dismissed Elava for 38, and when Toll removed Murphy for 34 with the first ball of his over, it was 4/137 with 10 overs to go and the excitement levels were rising.

Another wicket in Tarryn's next over, followed by a run out from the re-introduced Caff in his follow through had the opposition nervous at 6/155.

With Jack Huther bowling tight at the other end, Caff picked up another wicket in his next over to have us right in the game, and with Jack then grabbing his own wicket after a great catch by Keats, the score was 8/161 with only two overs to go.

With the skipper unlucky to go for three runs in the penultimate over, Jack Huther had the ball for the last over with only two needed for victory.

The Nerrena number 10 swung wildly and was lucky to pierce a gap for 4, Jack clean bowling him next ball as we played out the over to finish the match, Nerrena finishing 9/173.

C1 Cricket

After a very wet winter and spring, Royal Rhyll had finally dried out enough to host its first game of the season.

The Sharks hosted Nyora, who sent the Sharks in to bat.

Manning and Excell opened the batting and got off to the usual solid start, until Excell was caught for 9.

Francis and Manning got the Island to drinks, however in a feeble attempt to get the score moving, Francis was caught for 15.

Debutant Dave 'poison' Ivy was next in, and he smashed some big shots before being caught for 14.

Marshall joined Manning and he was turning the strike over before being bowled for 6.

Asurami had a brief stay as a mix up resulted in him being runout for 1.

Manning was the next to be dismissed, for a well-made 69.

Cleary joined Satchin and put on 37 to get the Sharks to 167 after their 35 overs.

Nyora's batting got off to a shaky start when debutant Zac Hughes held on to a sharp chance off Cleary's bowling with Zac's first catch as a senior wicket keeper.

Marshall took a great catch to give Francis a wicket, 2/30.

Nyora built a partnership which was finally broken when Asurami caught a skied ball off Mani's bowling.

This triggered a collapse as Asurami grabbed a wicket with a catch to Francis and Satchin got

Ivey got his first wicket PIDCC in the last over, bowled, A great effort in the field, and and followed up with a second Nyora finished 8/76.
